Here's how to use this guide:

- If you're still trying to figure out what you want to be when you grow up, start with the Self-Assessment section and find out your personality type. Once you are certain which type you are, refer to the Career Chart in the middle of the publication for occupations under your type.
- To get the most out of the Career Chart, see the "Key to the Career Chart" on page 35 first, to know what the abbreviations on the chart mean.
- If you just want to focus on doing an effective job search right away, go straight to the section, "The Job Search".
- If you're a woman, besides the sections above, you'll want to read the section titled, "For Women Mostly". This is also where you'll find information about child care in Utah.
- If you want more information on a particular topic than the article contains, check for Internet links listed at the bottom of the article. Use these to delve deeper into the subject that interests you.
- Actual job openings listed with DWS can be accessed at <http://jobs.dws.state.ut.us/> –the Electronic Job Board. The list covers all of Utah and is updated each day.
- Find the DWS office nearest you: <http://jobs.utah.gov/Regions/EC.asp>
